SARAH CONNOLLY TELLS OF SEEING ACCUSED ON BRIDGE

TUCKER ALIBI

Witness Fixes Time at Which She Saw Tucker on Weston Bridge as Few Minutes Past Noon Hour, and Again at 12:53 Passing Connolly House, Going Towards His Home.

The alibi on which the defence relies to show that Charles Louis Tucker is not guilty of the murder of Mabel Page was begun to-day when Sarah Connolly, of Auburndale, was called to the witness stand. Her meeting with Tucker on the day of the tragedy forms the initial point in the alibi which ends with Tucker at his own home within an hour after he started on his walk.

The witness is youthful and rather attractive. She testified with frankness and composure. She said, in response to questions from Mr. Vahey, that she started, about twenty minutes before 12 o'clock, to take dinner from her home in Charles street to her father, John Connolly, who worked for Charles Cutter, at Cutter's Corner.

TUCKER ON BRIDGE.

On the way she met two men. She gave the dinner pail to one of them to take to her father, and returned home by way of the Weston bridge. She met Tucker on the bridge. He was smoking a pipe and walking slowly toward Weston. It was then a few minutes past the noon hour. She also met Allen Kingsbury and an elderly man whom she did not know.

Her brother called her attention to the time when she got home. He was in for dinner, and after eating sat and smoked. He usually left for work again about ten minutes to 1 o'clock. A few minutes before he left that day, however, she saw Tucker again. He passed her house, going toward Bourne street. It was then about 12.30 or 12.35 o'clock. Her brother left almost immediately thereafter.

Mrs. Connolly's testimony was given with clearness and emphasis. She was evidently positive of everything she said. Her examination was not unbroken as to time or circumstances.

She was provoked on the stand by witnesses called to establish Tucker's ownership of the suspected Canadian pin, found in his coat pocket, and alleged by the Commonwealth to have been stolen from the Page house. Four witnesses—Brian Fish, Charles J. French, a salesman, J. A. Chase, Lower Falls, and John Doyle, resident in Irving street, Boston, testified to having seen Tucker with such a pin at various times before the Mabel Page murder.

Young Fish, who was formerly employed in Thayer & Martin's, where Tucker worked, testified that Tucker dropped the hunting knife in the Boston Public Hall, on the fourth floor, on the morning of the Page murder, and in attempting to pick it up, he cut his finger, and also that Tucker's overcoat which he held on his knee while his finger was bleeding.

CAME TO BELL KNIFE.

On the Saturday before the murder of Mabel Page Tucker came from Auburndale to Boston. The purpose of his visit, according to the young man's own story, was to see his father, who was in the Commonwealth to see some old clothing and dispose of the knife, and it was in his coat pocket.

It is recalled to-day that on that Saturday evening, he passed his own story, according to the young man's own story, was to see his father, who was in the Commonwealth to see some old clothing and dispose of the knife, and it was in his coat pocket.

POSED EXPRESSLY FOR THE BOSTON AMERICAN.

SARAH CONNOLLY, FIRST OF TUCKER ALIBI WITNESSES.

She testified to-day that she had seen the accused man twice on the day Mabel Page was slain: once on the Weston bridge, about noon, and again just before 1 o'clock, when he was going home.

FALL RIVER CHEERED AT STRIKE END

FALL RIVER, Jan. 19.—The blowing of whistles, announcing the mill operations to work, the whir of machinery and the thousands of men, women and children trooping along the streets on their way to the mills, instead of standing about idly, as they have been doing for months past, all signs that the strike is actually over.

and that Fall River has awakened, made this a real better day in the city. In all sections of the city the mills are running with practically full complements of hands, with the exception of the weaving, by many of the strikers who have returned to the city. It was demanded expedient to wait until they returned and have them.

MR. HEARST TELLS WHY HIS RAILROAD RATE BILL SHOULD PASS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—Sen. Charles Hearst, Republican of New York, has concluded his argument before the Interstate and Foreign Commerce committee of the House.

There was a full attendance of the committee. Messrs. McCall of Kentucky and Cragg of Virginia addressed the committee and then Mr. Hearst was heard.

He took occasion to make comparison between his measure and the so-called "Administration Bill" introduced by Messrs. Enoch and Townsend, and which contains the central ideas of the Hearst bill.

Crisis Has Been Reached.

The freight rate legislation question has reached a crisis. In recent reports are ahead and are generally accepted that a freight rate bill will be a law before Feb. 25. The great question is, what will the legislation be? Will it be on the lines of the Hearst bill, or will it be a makeshift measure designed to temporarily satisfy the public demand?

The White House is keenly alive to the gravity of the situation. President Roosevelt, Attorney-General Moody and Secretary Morton conferred long and earnestly after the cabinet meeting today. It was reported that they had heard that "Chairman" of the House committee and Senator Ekins, chairman of the Senate committee, had reached common ground, were negotiating a bill, and had arranged with the Republican leaders in both houses to pass it.

It is understood that President Roosevelt and Messrs. Ekins and Hearst are far apart on some essential details of the proposed legislation, and that Messrs. Enoch and Townsend, resigned from the House, hurried the preparation of their bill to secure its passage before Mr. Hearst's measure is introduced.

To Head Off Hearst.

It is understood that President Roosevelt and Messrs. Ekins and Hearst are far apart on some essential details of the proposed legislation, and that Messrs. Enoch and Townsend, resigned from the House, hurried the preparation of their bill to secure its passage before Mr. Hearst's measure is introduced.

As an evidence of the haste that has suddenly been decided on by some of the leading Congressional leaders may be pointed out the fact that Senator Ekins allowed the delegation of Railroad Committee duties to Mr. Enoch, a Republican, twenty minutes before the introduction of their views before the Senate committee on Friday. Twenty minutes before thirty states is not a prodigious time.

Railroads' New Plan.

Today it is reported on good authority that the railroads have determined to head the House and Senate with petitions from their employees. These petitions will protest against any disturbance of the present structure of a "minimum rate-making" committee. The railroads will also introduce on Friday and formally demand that the subject be left where by Congress.

Mr. Hearst, in opening his remarks on the bill, said:

"I have recently finished with my bill, but I believe the two bills have some strong points in common. I introduced the committee the other day. These bills contain some of the same ideas, and in my opinion, they are in my bill. The character of the bill will be ample."

Mr. Enoch—What bills are these that you speak of?

Mr. Townsend—Have you not seen the bill introduced by Mr. Davis, also?

Mr. Enoch—Yes, but I saw something introduced by Mr. Davis.

Mr. Hearst—And by Mr. Shackelford and others?

Mr. Hearst—I made particular reference to the bill of Mr. Enoch, and Mr. Enoch, because they contain many provisions which are identical with the provisions of my bill. They contain some provisions that are not in my bill, and my bill contains some provisions that are not in theirs. I do not propose to include certain provisions, and why I did include others which are not in theirs, I will introduce. As the time is short, I will not say more than that the bill is the most important provision.

Section 1 of Mr. Townsend's bill states:

Dr. Julian A. Mead, called by the State, testified that the width of the broken knife blade corresponded with the wounds on the murdered woman. The shape of the cut through the corsets indicated a blunt edge on the knife.

Dr. Edward J. Preece said that this was shown by Dr. Mead's autopsy report, the slit through the carotid, severing of veins cutting edge of a single-edged knife was upward. Dr. Joseph S. Lockhart said that the cut through the corsets and the appearance of the wounds were contrary to indications of single-edge knife slashes.

Dr. Joseph M. Lockhart of Cambridge, a surgeon, testified for the Tucker defence regarding the wounds inflicted upon Miss Page. He said he thought the first wound was in the back, the second in the neck,

HARVARD HOPES TO GET NEXT COLLEGIATE MEET

The Intercollegiate Amateur Athletic Association will hold a meeting at New York Saturday evening. At that meeting the plans of the Intercollegiate track meet will be determined. Last year when the meet was awarded to the T. of P. at Philadelphia, it was practically promised that the meet this year would be given to Harvard and held in the Stadium. Harvard men are anxiously hoping that this promise will be fulfilled. Russell R. Lord, the manager of the Crimson track team, will represent Harvard at the meeting.

Basketball: Harvard's basketball team will line up against Dartmouth in the Hemenway Gymnasium at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The game promises to be a pretty one, as both teams are strong. Hockey: The Harvard hockey team overcame the seven from the Springfield Training School in the Stadium last night, defeating them by the score of 10 to 0. The Crimson team scored 10 goals in the first half. The Springfield team was completely out of the game.

Should Women Go to the Tucker Trial?

Artist Burgess's sketch of women at the Tucker trial.

SHOULD women attend the Tucker trial? This question, raised by a reader of the Woman's Page of the BOSTON AMERICAN, has excited widespread interest, and letters answering the question "yes" or "no" are arriving in great numbers. Some of them are printed today.

Editor Woman's Page:
After having read, with great interest, the account of the Tucker trial, I am sure that the women who go to the trial will be doing all in their power to get a better view of the case. It is not better to say, but it seems to me that the very best of women would go to the trial of Mary Rogers and look on the spectacle of her trial.

Seven Years of Woman
The Fear of Growing Old
By DOROTHY DIX

THE second deadly fear that tortments women is the fear of growing old and losing their good looks.

This is the real spectre that makes every woman shake in her shoes.

BYRANT BARBER, a capitalist of Chicago, charges one George Weaver, manager of Mr. Barber's hotel, with being ill fitted to run a hotel on account of his unresponsible fat.

It now rests with the judges before whom the case is being tried to tell the waiting world whether a man may be fat and be a competent man of business.

In my opinion it is possible, but not in many instances probable.

The best horse in the world will run faster under an eighty-pound jockey than he will with a one hundred and eighty-pound rider.

Great weight, great size of any kind, are serious handicaps in the race of life.

There are men clever enough and determined enough to overcome the handicap, but it is there, nevertheless, and men always succumb to it more quickly than little men.

That's because their bodies master them.

Every time a fat woman tries to be of some use in the world besides to the corner manufacturer, she has to have a struggle with the fat that says to her every hour in the day, "Thou shalt not do a thing to distress me."

The energy she puts into these struggles she could put into her work if she were comfortably thin.

Little men are often ruled by their mind.

It takes a strong mind to rule a strong body.

I know a clever woman who came home to find that in her absence of three years the lawyer in charge of her estate had grown enormously fat.

"That explains it," she said. "I knew something dreadful had happened to him. I have to wait for three months for the income that ought to come in every four weeks," and she wondered that her lawyer for a thin one.

Who was the most competent maid who ever had to keep her husband's fat?

The big creature who had to eat her meals to keep her husband's fat?

The little girl who was used to being tired and who did not let it bother her.

I never enjoy a fat man or a fat woman. I can help it.

I know what a lot of energy it takes to keep a fat husband's fat.

I've done it.

Hide your face, for it is written upon your shining forehead in letters so

BLONDE OR BRUNETTE?

THE question raised in the BOS- TON SUNDAY AMERICAN, whether the blonde or the brunette woman is the highest type of beauty, is arousing widespread interest among the readers of this newspaper.

Both styles of feminine loveliness have their ardent partisans, who are able to furnish strong reasons for their convictions, and they are beginning to express their opinions in letters on the subject. Some of these are printed today.

This question will doubtless be an interesting one for readers of the Woman's Page of the BOSTON AMERICAN to discuss, and letters giving personal preferences and arguments favoring one type or the other will be welcome.

Lillian Russell declares that the true blonde is the most charming type of beauty. Mrs. Ella Wheeler Wilcox prefers a medium-sized, fair woman.

Others vote for the brunette, while still others delight in the small, dark fair one.

TITIAN BLONDE BEST
In the Titian blonde we find the most beautiful type of feminine beauty. The hair is wavy, the eyes are blue, the complexion is fair, the features are full and soft, and the whole is a perfect harmony of beauty.
